

Project Assistants Is Now WiserWulff

As businesses grow, their message, services, and core identity sometimes need to be updated. Our firm has experienced considerable growth, increasing by nearly 300% in the last five years. As such, "Project Assistants" no longer reflects our full range and scale of services. We offer our clients much more than assistance and have expanded our services beyond projects.

This was a challenging decision. For the past 27 years, we have operated as Project Assistants and take pride in our work and the organizations we have served. We are grateful to our past and current clients as we begin this new journey in our history.

Our services have expanded, but our focus remains unchanged. No matter what outcome an organization is seeking to achieve, projects are what get them there. At WiserWulff, we help our clients navigate complex challenges to achieve operational goals and improve performance in manufacturing, distribution, and technological and organizational transformation. We achieve this through effective and efficient portfolios, programs, and project management talent and strategies that deliver tangible results.
